THE GREEN FLAG.

BY MERULAN.

Prepare! prepare with silent care,
And trust to words no longer,
We've had enough of such false stuff,
And we are nought the stronger;
Those mountebanks who fill their ranks
By lying all in chorus,
Of them beware, and still prepare
For the Green Flag flying o'er us!

In days of yore when talkers bore
A sword like men of valor,
From every fight they led the flight
With base and coward pallor;
Such worthless men, by voice and pen,
With faction cursed and tore us—
We'll strike them dumb with fife and drum
And the Green Flag flying o'er us!

Prepare! prepare, in joy or care
To fill the gap of danger,
And silent force will run its course
To swamp the subtle stranger;
Within that gap our chains we'll snap,
And conquer all before us—
If we prepare to do and dare,
With the Green Flag flying o'er us!

In other days the peasants' gaze
Drooped slavish down to no man,
Unskilled and rude, they sank in blood
Before their serried foeman.
Shall we like those confront our foes,
Their blood-red tale before us?
No! we'll prepare,—then do and dare
With the Green Flag flying o'er us!

And when the time of deeds sublime
Shall light the way before us,
With patriot wrath we'll clear our path
And free the land that bore us;
The nations round shall hear the sound
Of our triumphant chorus
Of drum and fife, in freedom's strife,
With the Green Flag flying o'er us!

Too Much Drink, Your Worship.

This is, in London, the burden of a thousand tales per annum; and women use it more than men. Not that they are more intemperate—far from it; but they make appeals better than men, and this is the appeal: Mrs. Anna, who described herself as an "independent lady," has just been charged with stealing two little flasks of brandy, value 1s., from the restaurant bar at the Charing-cross Railway Station. The prisoner was alleged to have gone a fortnight ago to the bar and ordered some refreshment, for which she paid with some little hesitation. When she left the counter a barmaid missed the brandy, and gave information to a private detective connected with the station, who arrested the prisoner with the flasks in her possession. She said she had offered a cheque for £5 which was in her possession in payment of the brandy, but the barmaid refused to take it. Mrs. Anna was suffering at the time, and required the brandy urgently. The magistrate remanded the prisoner on bail, to which she failed to surrender the following week. A warrant was issued, but the prisoner gave herself up, expressing her sorrow for having acted so foolishly. She now pleaded guilty, and said that she had no idea the flasks were in her possession, for her head was completely lost through trouble and too much drink which she had taken that day. The magistrate was inexorable, and sentenced the woman to one month, with hard labor.

An Irishman having charge of a yankee dairy was caught helping himself quite liberally to the cream, by his mistress, who said "Oh Pat, I don't like that," "Faith thin," said Pat, "you don't like what's good, ma'am."

It is said that the Mormons have three powder mills. With so many wives and mothers-in-law to blow them up, we can't see what the dickens they want with powder mills.

A father who has a family of grown up daughters says he never could find any pleasure in pa'in!

IRISH NEWS.

☞ Owing to the terrific storm which recently tore up miles of the track in the mountain district of the U. P. R, R., the European mail has not arrived on time, and therefore our Irish news this week is more limited than we could wish it. Next week, however, will compensate for all that.

Antrim.

Mr. William Johnston, M.P., for Belfast, has procured the publication of a Parliamentary return, from which it appears that there are eight workhouses in Ireland, viz.—Ballinasloe, Cork, Galway, Killarney, Kilmacthomas, Limerick, Tullamore and Wexford—in which nuns are employed as nurses. The entire number so employed is thirty-one. All are resident, and all receive payment, except in Limerick, where only three out of eight or ten are paid. The total annual salaries amount to £605.

The Belfast Town Council have received from Government a bill claiming £3,100 for the maintenance of extra police in the town during and since the late riots.

Carlow.

Carlow is now, and has for a long time been, represented in the London Parliament by a pair of the most anti-national and anti-Irish members in the House of Commons. The Carlow Post, however, has started to "go for their scalps," and declares that Home Rulers shall take their places at the next election.

Cavan.

The grand jury have before them a claim for £1,000, made by a farmer named Carthy, for the murder of his son last March at Coolbane.

Clare.

The value of land in this county may be guessed from the following:—On the 23d ult., the farm of Ballymacrogan, in the neighborhood of Ruane, was put up for auction by Mr. Richard Pearson, at his salerooms, Ennis. The land, which is part of the property of Colonel Thomas Arthur, contains about 80 acres, held under lease for 31 years, from September, 1869. The yearly rent is £50; valuation, £42 5s. Mr. Pilkington was declared the purchaser at £1,230, exclusive of five per cent. auction fees, the sum realized being 30 years' purchase on the valuation, or 20 years' purchase on the rental.

Cork.

With reference to the introduction of nuns into the Mallow hospital, a letter was read from the Local Government Board, stating that they could not allow any portion of the Workhouse to be turned into a conventual establishment, and, therefore, they could not sanction the admission of nuns as nurses, as it would be necessary that they should live in the house.

On the 23d ult., Professor Purcell O'Leary, who went like a maniac through the streets of Queenstown, dressed to represent the Shah of Persia, in a yellow suit and chamois knee-breeches, armed with a sword, bow, arrow, and large club, and wearing a gold crown for a cap, was arrested and brought before Messrs. Macleod, R. M., and Beamish, J. P., charged with presenting a revolver at one of his servants, and firing same at her head. He was lodged in Bridewell on remand.

A MAN WHO KNEW HOW TO FALL.—On the 19th ult., a young man named Patrick Shea, a miner, fell seventy-two feet through an air shaft in Kilonogue mines, at Allihies. Mr. Harrison, M.D., was immediately in attendance, and, after a short examination, found that the injuries received were of a trifling nature, no bones having been broken nor other hurt of a serious nature. There was not even an external mark apparent.

Michael O'Sullivan, a pupil-teacher in the Dunmanway Model School, recently whipped a pupil named Robert McCullagh. Robert died, and Mike is in jail on a charge of common assault.

Derry.

Mr. Darcy Boulton, Q. C., D. G. M., and Mr. Herbert S. MacDonald, two of her delegates appointed by the Orange Institution in Canada to attend the conference to be held in Glasgow on the 16th July, arrived in Derry by the Allan Line. They were met on their arrival at the Imperial Hotel by Thompson, J. P.; Robert McVicker, James Calhoun, and other prominent members of the Orange and Apprentice Boys' Societies. William Johnston, M. P., and Stewart Blacker joined the party at the hotel.

Dublin.

An Irish Central Press telegram makes the following statement: "It is freely asserted in Dublin that several emissaries from the American organization, including many who escaped from Ireland after the rising of 1867, have appeared again in this country. The police are making vigilant inquiries, and it is not improbable that some important results will be made within a brief period." All bosh, of course.

The Orangemen's banquet in Dublin, got up to receive Bolton and MacDonald, the delegates from Canada, passed off with nothing more serious than the soreness of heads consequent on too liberal an indulgence in tall talk, champagne and brandy punch.

Michael McCann, who had been a clerk in Master Brooke's Office, Court of Chancery, and who pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with having removed stamps from documents in that office, thereby defrauding the Revenue, has been sentenced to five years penal servitude.

Fermanagh.

The Orange anniversary was ushered in in Enniskillen by a display of the usual orange and purple bannerets on the turrets, and a long streamer on the tower of the church, which were hoisted amidst the customary rejoicings. Everything passed off quietly.

Galway.

On the 28th ult., at the Ballinasloe petty sessions, the adjourned case of David Moclair, a gauger on the Midland Great Western Railway, and residing within a short distance of where the late outrage occurred, attended to answer the charge brought against him, but it appeared that the Railway Company were unable to substantiate the alleged charge of writing threatening letters, and Moclair was discharged.

Kerry.

At the Tralee Sessions, on the 25th ult., a man named Murry, was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude (several other convictions having been proved against him) for having stolen two £1 notes and some silver, out of the pocket of a fellow-lodger in a lodging-house. The peculiarity of the case was, that the prisoner stole the money while kneeling down under the pretence of saying his prayers. A battered sixpence found on him led to his conviction.

Kildare.

At the Kildare Quarter Sessions, at Athy, on the 21st ult., before Thomas Lefroy, Esq., Q. C., Chairman, a boy named Case, charged with arson, at Ballitore, was returned to the assizes; James Delaney and Thomas Hanlon, circulating base coin, six calendar months' imprisonment; David Braddish and John J. Kavanagh, assaulting the police, each to a month's imprisonment; James Aldridge, stealing bullocks at Castledermot, and being an old offender, seven years' penal servitude; James Carey, same offence, eighteen months' imprisonment; Thomas Flynn, a private from the 51st Regiment, stealing £3 15s. at the Curragh, four months' imprisonment; John Hynes was indicted for fraudulently obtaining £12 from Mr. Vernon, Kilmainham, Dublin, by means of cheating in playing cards whilst in a railway carriage eighteen months' imprisonment with hard labor.

Kilkenny.

Rev. Mr. O'Keeffe referred, in addressing his Callan congregation last Sunday, to the verdict which he obtained against Mr. Harkin, saying that he had no reason to show that the verdict was also against the Education Board, and that he expected to have a verdict from Parliament to the same effect, on Mr. Bouverie's motion, on some day of this week. He said he had a writ served on the Bishop of Ossory last Friday morning, inviting him to the Kildare Assizes, to have the matters in dispute decided by a judge and jury. And now Miss Quirk, a teacher in one of the Callan schools, seeks to recover damages from Mr. Harkin, who is an inspector of schools under the National Board, for an alleged libel in a report made by the defendant respecting the state of the school.

John Adbert died in a fit of sneezing at Mooncoin, on Monday night, 30th ult.

The public baths have been formally opened in Kilkenny.

King's County.

An important meeting for the consideration of railway extension was held in the Town Hall Edenderry, on Saturday. Captain Dames, D. L., having been moved to the chair, explained the object of the meeting. Mr. Brett, County Surveyor of Kildare, gave information in connection with the project, and strongly advocated a union with Salins Station on the Great Southern and Western Railway.

Limerick.

The labor strike in Limerick has been brought to an amicable termination by the Messrs. Russel consenting to grant an increase of 2s. per week to their men, the latter having accepted that instead of the 3s which they had demanded.

Louth.

On the night of the 10th ult., a dastardly outrage was committed on the lands of Mr. James Butterly, of Mooremount, adjacent to Dunleer, and informations were taken before the county Louth justices to found an application for compensation for the malicious injury, from which it appears that on the night in question, a valuable mare was killed, some persons having entered the field, and, having stabbed her several times, finally ripped her open, when they decamped. The probable reason assigned for the outrage is, Mr. Butterly has lately become occupier of some ground from which other parties were dispossessed for long arrears.

Monaghan.

On Thursday night (July 3) information was conveyed to the Carrickmacross constabulary that a man was murdered about a quarter of a mile from that town. The constabulary found two men lying on the public road. One of the men, a farmer named Denis Martin, was insensible, and on his body were several cuts and bruises. He was removed to Carrickmacross, and attended by Dr. Taggart, but died in less than half an hour. The other man is John Brennan, employed as a laborer in a kiln at Killany. When the police arrived he feigned insensibility, but the police got him on his feet and found he had sustained no injury. He was at once placed under arrest. Both parties resided in the same townland. It is said that jealousy led to the fatal occurrence.

Mayo.

A serious fire broke out in Castlebar, on the premises of a man named Philpin, grocer and spirit dealer, resulting in the total destruction of two adjoining houses. The constabulary, Twelfth Regiment, and civilians with engines worked effectively, and were the elements not subdued so rapidly, the result might have been disastrous, it being adjacent to spirit stores and warehouses of immense value in the principal street.

Queen's County.

At the Commission of Oyer and Dublin, on the 21st ult., a respectable-looking young man, named Pierce Lalor, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with the manslaughter of a young man named Cooke, on the 2d of April last. Lalor went in with a friend of his to a grocer's house, in Poolbeg street, and the assistant, a young man named Cooke, refused to give him drink. Some angry words took place between him and Cooke, during which he struck Cooke, with the handle of his umbrella, hitting him in the eye. This caused inflammation, and resulted in the death of Cooke. Mr. Robert Owen, a gentleman from the Queen's County, deposed that the prisoner belonged to that county, and that he and his family were respectable, and that young Lalor, whom he had known from his childhood, was a quiet, peaceful and respectable young man. He was sentenced to be imprisoned for six months, and kept to hard labor.

Tipperary.

On Tuesday Lieutenant Ryan, of the Fifteenth Regiment, with all the endurance of a thorough Irishman and a Tipperary man too, performed a pedestrian feat of no ordinary character by walking from Cork Barracks to Charles Fort, a distance of seventeen Irish miles. There was a challenge between Mr. Ryan and Mr. Pagson, a brother officer, the first named to walk the entire distance above mentioned and get an hour's start of the latter who was to run it. Mr. Pagson pursued his opponent with gradually flagging spirit till he came to Belgooly, which is within four miles of Charles Fort, but here he gave up and sank quite exhausted. Mr. Ryan being then sufficently far a head to insure his success had Mr. Pagson even continued the contest. Mr. Ryan performed the feat by a fair walk in two hours and forty minutes, and his defeated opponent got over the distance between the start and Belgooly in two hours and twenty minutes (thirteen miles).

Waterford.

Mr. De le Poer resigned his seat in Parliament as Member for Waterford, in order to devote his remaining years to a monastic life. He had seen the hollowness of the world, and the iniquity of imperial councils. Contrariwise, his successor, Stuart, abandons his church, where he had taken Orders, and now takes a headlong plunge into politics.

Some poor women have been arrested at Taghmon under the Peddler's Act, for not having licenses. The woman keep small shops in Wexford, selling books, beads, &c., and attend at chapel gates, occasionally, particularly at missions, to dispose of these articles. They were never meddled with until now.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

The British Parliament closed on Tuesday last. The Queen thanked her faithful commons for their promptness in meeting the general awards. This was appropriate enough, inasmuch as they most faithfully bestowed on her son, the Duke of Edinburgh, an enormous annuity to be paid out of the people's pockets, just the place whence comes her own little salary of $385,000 a year, to say nothing of free palaces and many valuable pickings. She told them, what they knew before, that the government is still occupied in giving effect to the treaty between England and the United States.

RAVAGES OF YELLOW FEVER.—A Santiago de Cuba, letter to the Sun says that the aid given to the Cuban cause by its natural ally, the yellow fever, has of late exceeded the anticipations of the insurgents; that the ravages made by the fever among the invaders are so great as to excite the pity even of their enemies. Not only has the fever become dangerously prevalant among the shipping at Havana, but it has extended also to the harbor of Matanzas.

A SNAKE ten feet long and a settler named Meegan, had a set-to a few days ago near Hollister. The struggle was for life, and for a time victory was doubtful. Meegan grasped the snake by the neck, but was growing weak under the pressure of the dreadful coils around his body. He would probably have secumbed had he not thought of his jack-knife which enabled him to put that snake into a tub of alcohol.

The Russians are highly elated over their success in the Khivan campaign, and not without just reason. Everything they desired is in a fair way of accomplishment; forty thousand slaves have been liberated, and the entire loss to the conquerors is only 21 killed, and 92 wounded. This is one of the most remarkable triumphs on record.

The Echo shield—the most valuable and honorable one given—was won this year by a team of Irish riflemen, to the great disappointment and disgust of their English and Scotch competitors.

On July 8, a great earthquake took place in Valparaiso, causing the loss of a few lives and a large amount of house property.

PACIFIC COAST.

Don Juan Foster is preparing to colonize his two ranches, Santa Margarita and Las Flores, in San Diego County, having a frontage of twenty-seven miles on the Pacific Ocean. He will present each colonist family with forty acres, leaving the same quantity adjoining, and for five years he will give each settler five cows and two horses free to use and work, reserving to himself their natural increase, and granting the settler the free use of the adjoining lot for pasturage; and he will put up an outside fence for the whole tracts, so that by the settlers keeping that fence in order, they may cultivate their own settlements untaxed with any charge for fencing. Only married families with progeny will be received to enjoy his free gifts.

The people East are arousing up to the conclusion which they should have formed long ago; namely, that this is not only the land of gold, but also of grain, fruits and flowers. With proper Legislation, directed to the smashing up of square-league ranchos, and the formation of small farms, we should have that influx of immigrants so necessary to the prosperity of our state. A colony of one hundred and fifty families have organized with a view of settling in Southern California. Their plans are to purchase not less than 10,000 acres of land, good for farming, lay out a town in the midst of it, and then allot each member a farm and a block 300 feet square in the town.

Brigham Young knows how to put up a job better than any politician among the Gentiles. At the territorial election held last Saturday, there was so one to say boo to his slate. Men, women and children, foreign "saints" among the number, bravely gave in their ballots, and the poor gentiles were so far out in the cold that none of them offered to vote at all.

The Morning Call may know a good deal about the celebrities of San Francisco, but evidently knows little of the profligate Prince of Wales, or it would not in an article of Last Tuesday, represent him in a "new character," that of a "statesman"!! Ye gods and little fishes, enlighten the Call.

The Commissioners appointed to examine the route of the Southern Pacific Railroad has reported favorably upon the grading and telegraph construction of the fourth section of railroad, extending from its intersection with the San Joaquin Valley branch of the Central Pacific Railroad.

The terrible conflagration which last week swept the streets of Portland, Oregon, has had a most destructive result. The loss of property is estimated at $1,158,675, on which there is but an insurance of $231,050.

Morgan Courtney, Superintendent of the Kentucky mine, was shot and killed on the night of the 1st of August at Pioche, by a gambler named George McKinney. The shooting was about a woman.

Carson has had a big bon fire. Seven thousand cords of wood on fire made starlight quite unnecessary last Sunday night. The destruction of a mile of railroad track, tells a little of the fury of the conflagration.

The construction of the San Diego and Arizona telegraph line is to begin in a few days, and finished by the end of the year.

It is reported that a coal mine has been found in the Picacho District, some seventy miles from Hollister, Monterey County.

Last Sunday, Father Francisco Mara, was consecrated co-adjutor Bishop of the diocese of Monterey.

The sum of $113, 367 lies in the treasury at Sacramento to the credit of the State fund for the public schools.

The Portland conflagration is believed to be the work of an organized gang of burglars.

In the coming gubernatorial contest in Massachusetts, the chances are largely in favor of the man who will permit quiet folks to drink their beer. The police have been making raids on the saloons in Worcester and elsewhere, and therefore there is howling and gnashing of teeth among the Teutons. Whether Ben Butler ever stole spoons or not will be a question never asked if he only lets the Mein Herrs have their lager. His audacity and other good qualities will probably make him Governor of the Bay State.

The utility of the telegraph as a thief-catcher was illustrated last Friday when a clerk of the Commercial Bank of Havana was arrested in New York Bay aboard the City of Mexico. He had with him $87,000 belonging to the Bank, and a siren belonging (temporarily) to himself. He was a good accountant; but, as he didn't get into New York undiscovered, he was for once out in his calculations.

Beware of taking a wife-addicted, like Captain Jack, to emotional insanity. Last Friday, in a crowded street car in Louisville (Ky.), Mrs. West in a peculiar state of mind, mistook her husband for a target, and blazed at him. The other passengers disarmed her, the police arrest her, and the husband (though badly wounded) went her bail. Outsiders are ill-natured enough to say that she shot her other half because he blocked her little game of elopement.

The N. Y. Law Institute has been presented with a fine portrait of Thomas Addis Emmet.

CORRESPONDENCE.

David Thorny on the Haythin Chinee.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 6th, 1873.

ED. NATIONALIST:—It seems to me that the lawyers, preachers, editors, politicians and all "sich" of San Francisco have a good deal of the spasmodic in their composition. A few weeks ago our ears were assailed from rosy dawn to dewy eve by furious tirades against China and the Chinese; and strong repressive measures against the intolerable evils they are bringing on us were demanded in stentorian tones. The curious part of the affair is, that the attack ceased as suddenly as a tropical storm, even as you surmised it would, though the nuisance and the danger remain in our midst, with their hideousness as glaring as ever. Now, without asking you to step into the arena of politics, I think that, as the question belongs to the foreign policy of the United States, you would be fully justified in calling on every Irish-American in California to see that the persons, to whom his vote is given at the approaching election, shall be perfectly sound and, from his past record, perfectly reliable on this important point. If a candidate keeps Chinese servants or patronizes Chinese manufactures, then he should without compunction be at once thrown overboard. The professions and the practices of our representatives, whether State or municipal, must be consistent and square, if we would have a repetition of the process by which the dear people have so often been befooled. The guide in this matter, on which most reliance can be placed, is not the present convenient promises and professions of candidates, but their past record. If their acts in the past bespeak indifference or antagonism to the interests of the toiling masses, they are not the men to be depended on in future, no matter whether or not they have contrived to get their names on the party ticket. In these days, men with long purses have long arms and can reach far; the workingmen should, therefore, be reminded that voting the whole ticket with "ne'er a scratch" is not always a safe operation. For local officers especially the thing is, not close adherence to party, but the selection of men who can be implicitly trusted to discharge their duties with honesty, zeal and ability.

Returning to the Chinese evil, which in itself combines moral and physical corruption, and militates most injuriously against the interests of white labor, I have to notice as most reprehensible the fact that many of those who are loudest in their outcries against the Chinese are so inconsistent as to give them material support. I called on one of these speechifiers this morning, and found his wife at the door buying vegetables from one of the moon-eyed barbarians, and saw himself inside with Chinese slippers on his feet, and a Chinese cigar in his mouth. His washing was done at a Chinese laundry, and his clothes were not without a suspicious air of being stitched by the same interesting people. Consistency, thou art a jewel! Now, I am going to set a roaring example of consistency myself. I began this communication in a very serious mood, inasmuch as I feel the degradation of having our city and State disgraced and endangered by these same Chinese; but the thought of my anti-Coolie friend and his "fixins" have so excited my risibility that I will now give Ah Sin's view of the question, remarking, for the behoof of your Eastern readers, that the Mongolian poet imitates Lord Dundreary in softening his "r's," but changes them into "l's" instead of "th's." Here is his opinion of what he calls the "Chlistian Yankee":—

CHINESE SONG.

BY AH SIN,

Mi tellee stlange stoly—beyond the big seas
Dwell the Melican men, called Chlistian Yankees—
Nice Melican man, talkee much belly sweet,
Him say Mi some punkins and cannot be beat,
And leckon and guess, and plenty lies spin.
Tinky tinky, tum tum, ti ti, chow chow, chop chop, chin chin.

This nice Melican man belly fond of good teas,
He say him conbelt all the heathen Chineese—
So he send missionalies, much cashee and lum—
The loot called gin seng, and the dlug opium,
And when we no tladee he plug muss begin.
Tinky tinky, tum tum, ti ti, chow chow, chop chop, chin chin.

A stlong Melican man asked mi buckee small game—
Mi no undelstand, and he findee flat tame—
This honest Bill Nye, thinkee cashee to get,
But catchee a Taltal, you ebly time bet;
But clubs became tlumps and nice Melican man win.
Tinky tinky, tum tum, ti ti, chow chow, chop chop. chin chin.

In 'Flisco the Yankees hab law belly loose,
And thleaten too muchee cookee Chineeman's goose,
While handy Judge Lynch, who lives nigh Yuba Dam,
Says the Heathen Chinee will bulst up Uncle Sam,
And he hab got a notion oul pig tails to thin,
Tinky tinky, tum tum, ti ti, chow chow, chop chop, chin chin.

Which is why Mi maintain that Confucius' command
Should be teachee a lule in the Melican land,
And if made to skedaddle to place we belong,
Ebly Yankee must git from Canton and Hong Kong,
Cause Chineeman nebel go back on his kin.
Tinky tinky, tum tum, ti ti, chow chow, chop chop, chin chin.

Coming in couples, smiling so sweetly, up the long aisle, tripping so neatly, envying bonnets, envying laces, nodding at neighbors, peering in faces. Whispering softly, heeding no sermon; what they go there for, hard to determine. On all around them gazing benignly; wholly unconscious, singing divinely. Prosy discoursing don't suit their whims; plainly they assemble just for the "hims."

A needless inquiry—When you take a "stitch in time," do you hem-brace an opportunity? We think sew.

The child of the sea—The harbor buoy.

United Workingmen's San Francisco CO-OPERATIVE

The above stamp is placed on the Goods made by this Boot and Shoe Manufacturing Company; and they desire to inform the Trade and the Public that an unprincipled Boot and Shoe firm of this city (a house doing a large business, and which ought to be above such a trick) are stamping their Worthless Chinese-made goods with a partial imitation of our Stamp, hoping to sell their goods as our make, and thereby injure our trade. We employ no Chinese labor, nor ever did, and our goods have always given satisfaction and built up a trade which those parties in their petty meanness are seeking to deprive us of. Therefore, we caution all who wish to buy our goods and patronize WHITE LABOR, to see that they are stamped as above.

PRIVATE MEDICAL AID
QUICK CURES MODERATE CHARGES
DR. W. K. DOHERTY'S
PRIVATE, MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE
(FOUNDED IN 1853.

No. 519 Sacramento Street, corner of Leidesdorff street (a few doors below the What Cheer House.) Private entrance on Leidesdorff street, San Francisco.

Established expressly to afford the Afflicted sound and scientific Medical Aid, in the treatment and cure of all Private and Chronic Diseases, cases of secrecy, and all sexual disorders.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

DR. W. K. DOHERTY RETURNS HIS SINCERE thanks to his numerous patients for their patronage, and would take this opportunity to remind them that he continues to consult at his Institute for the cure of CHRONIC DISEASES of the LUNGS, LIVER, KIDNEYS, DIGESTIVE and GENITO-URINARY ORGANS, and all private diseases, viz: SYPHILIS, in all its forms and stages; SEMINAL WEAKNESS, and all the horrid consequences of self-abuse; GONORRHŒA, GLEET, STRICTURES, NOCTURNAL and DIURNAL EMISSIONS, SEXUAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE BACK and LOINS, INFLAMMATION OF THE BLADDER and KIDNEYS, etc., etc.; and he hopes his long experience and successful practice will continue to insure him a share of public patronage. By the practice of many years in Europe and the United States, he is enabled to apply the most efficient and successful remedies against diseases of all kinds. He cures without mercury, charges moderate, treats his patients in a correct and honorable way, and has references of unquestionable veracity from men of known respectability and high standing in society. All parties consulting him by letter or otherwise, will receive the best and gentlest treatment and implicit secrecy.

DR. DOHERTY would call attention to the following certificates, from two of his patients who having fully recovered their health, desire to make known their remedial agent. It will be seen their statements are fully authenticated by a Notary public.

The welfare of society imperiously demands their publicity, and they are given more to warn the unwary than to sound the praises of a Physician, of whom hundreds of like cases can be cited, during a practice of more than twenty years.

A CASE OF GLEET AND STRICTURE.

DR. DOHERTY—Dear Sir: I feel my health so fully restored that, in common gratitude, I believe I should make you some written acknowledgment, for your fee was small for the work performed.

I arrived in this city from the East about one year ago, and was then suffering from an old case of Gleet, complicated with Stricture. Being a stranger in the city, and believing that those doctors who gave such positive assurances of success were necessarily the best, I placed myself in their charge, and continued under their treatment until I had lost nearly all hope and a considerable sum of money.

I wish to say now that you are the sixth doctor I have employed, and the only one that has ever done me any service. My Gleet is wholly cured, the Stricture is all removed, and my general health is better than it has been for years

In conclusion, I would say to the many unfortunates who require medical advice, if you have any doubt as to whom you should employ, ask DR. DOHERTY for my address and call and see me. (I keep a store in this city.) My experience may save you many dollars.

I would also add that in the early stage of my disease, I used a large amount of the preparations advertised as infallible cures for Gonnorhœa, Gleet, etc., but never derived any benefit from them.

I am, Doctor, very truly yours, L——H——.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS—A SWORN-TO CERTIFICATE OF MOST REMARKABLE CURE OF SPERMATORRHŒA.

A desire to benefit suffering humanity, and a feeling of gratitude to DR. W. K. DOHERTY, alone induces me to make this statement. For many years I had been afflicted with that fearful disease known as "Spermatorrhœa" or Seminal weakness, the result of self-abuse, but till 1855 experienced but little trouble or inconvenience. In that year, however, I had Seminal weakness to a fearful extent, which was soon followed by the most alarming symptoms, as weakness of the back and limbs, pain in the head dimness of vision, nervousness and general debility. My mind, too, was affected to such an extent as to seriously impair my memory; my ideas were confused and spirits depressed. I was averse to society, had evil forebodings and self-distrust, and was entirely unfitted for any of the duties of life. From 1855 to the summer of 1863, I employed the very best medical talent I could find, and spent several hundred dollars but in no instance obtained more than temporary relief. I had about concluded there was no relief for me in this world, but reading DR. DOHERTY'S card I thought I should call and see him, as he charged nothing for consultation. I had an interview with the doctor at his office, in Sacramento street, and his fee for treatment was so reasonable, I determined to try him, though I did not expect much benefit from his treatment. On the fifth of December last I placed myself under his care; in one week I found myself very much improved, and now, after five weeks treatment, I feel thoroughly cured of all my troubles, and in the enjoyment of the best of health. Hoping that my experience may be of benefit to others similarly afflicted, I subscribe myself.

JAMES JOHNSTON

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 15th day January, A. D., 1864.

TO FEMALES.

When a female is enervated, or afflicted with disease, as weakness of the back and limbs, pain in the head, dimness of sight, loss of muscular power, palpitation of the heart, irritability, nervousness, extreme urinary difficulties, derangement of digestive functions, general debility, vaginitis, all diseases of the womb, hysteria, sterility, and all other diseases peculiar to females, she should go or write at once to the celebrated female doctor, W. K. DOHERTY, at his Medical Institute and consult him about her troubles and disease. The Doctor is effecting more cures than any other Physician in the State of California. Let no false delicacy prevent you, but apply immediately and save yourself from painful sufferings and premature death All Married ladies whose delicate health or other circumstances prevent an increase in their families, should write or call at DR. W K. DOHERTY'S Medical Institute, and they will receive every possible relief and help.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Patients male or female) residing in any part of the country however distant, who may desire the opinion and advice of Dr. Doherty in their respective cases, and who think proper to submit a written statement of such, in preference to holding a personal interview, are respectfully assured that their communications will be held most sacred. The Doctor is a regular graduate, and may be consulted with perfect confidence.

If the case be fully and candidly described, personal communication will be unnecessary, as instructions for diet, regimen, and the general treatment of the case itself (including the remedies,) will be forwarded without delay, and in such a manner as to convey no idea of the purport of the letter or parcel so transmitted.

SPERMATORRHŒA.

DR. DOHERTY has published an important pamphlet embodying his own views and experiences in relation to Impotency, or Virility, being a short treatise on Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, Nervous and Physical Debility consequent on this affection, and other diseases of the sexual organs.

This little work contains information of the utmost value to all, whether married or single, and will be sent FREE by mail on receipt of six cents in postage stamps for return postage. Address

Orange Glorifications.

Sir Jonah Barrington has noted some whimsical things in connection with various political festivals, which have culminated in the Orange processions. He was a Protestant, but a man of Irish sentiments, with a tincture of philosophy in his composition.

The anomoly of the political principles of the then ascendancy party appeared comical to a calm observer. They professed "unshaken loyalty"—yet they were thorough-going partisans of both Cromwell and William the Third "Two decided Usurpers—one of them having destroyed his (royal) father-in-law, and the other decapitated his king."

They celebrated their festival on the 5th of November—rejoicing that a Scottish king in London had been saved from "gunpowder, treason, and plot." Then, when the Thirtieth of January came round, they had another glorification concerning the king's son, indeed—but not because he had been saved from any danger, but because his head had been chopped off upon the scaffold! Next came another anniversary, which commemorated the downfall of his executioners from power, and the Restoration of his son to the throne. They celebrated that festival, also; and whilst they rejoiced, in putting a crown upon the head of the son of a king, who would not quietly keep his own head on, they never failed to drink bumpers to the memory of Old Noll (Oliver Cromwell) who had cut that king's head off. As a climax, in order to commemorate the whole story, and make their children remember it, they dressed up a fat calf's head on every anniversary of King Charles's throat being cut, and with a smoked ham, placed by the side of it, all partook thereof most happily, washing down the emblem with as much claret as they could hold."

The collision of anniversaries was increased by later celebrations, such as those of the Boyne. We shall let the Protestant author tell it, in his own humorous way: "Having thus shown their loyalty to James the First, and their attachment to his son's murderers, and then their loyalty to one of his grandsons—to another of whom they were disloyal—they next proceeded to celebrate the birthday of William of Orange, a Dutchman, who turned their King, his father-in-law, out of the country, and who, in all probability, would have given them another calf's head for their celebration if his said father-in-law had not got out of the way, with the utmost expedition, and gone to live upon charity in France with the natural enemies of the British nation."

In its issue of July 12, the Irishman, in the following rather grotesque fashion, directs attention to some other Orange oddities:—

Orangemen are Protestant Monks. Like Catholic Monks they take solemn vows, hold chapters, elect superiors, and go through a variety of ceremonies. Their rites differ from those of the Protestant Puseyite Monastic Orders in England. But they are staunch Ritualists. They stickle for every jot and tittle of their ceremonies, and will not do away with one of their parti-coloured vestures for any man—or Bishop. It is true it has been a somewhat militant order, but what of that? The Knights Templars—the Knights of Malta, were Militant Orders. The Black Knights of the Orange Order are not more militant than these. It is true, also, that thy are not celibates, they marry and give in marriage. But the minor lay Orders, in connection with Catholic Celibate Orders, do the same.

Year after year, at this season, we have declared the great historic truth — which diverse parties sought to stifle—that King William the Third was the agent of the Pope. Only for the hearty aid given him by the Pope he never would have set foot in England. And when news arrived at Rome that William had really won the Battle of the Boyne, the Papal City was illuminated, and there were great rejoicings amongst the Pope's party.

The first celebration of the victory of the Boyne was by the Papal party at Rome! It is this which the Orange Order annually repeat! William's army, composed of a large number of Catholics as well as of Protestants, fought that Battle with green leaves and boughs in their caps. The Army of James had the red uniforms and white cockades of the Stuarts. Why does not the Orange order now wear the Green—which the soldiers of William wore? Why does it wear the orange and purple—the Papal colors? We have stated, on former occasions, our view (never contradicted) that this change from green to orange and purple was done out of compliment to the Pope! It waa a well-deserved compliment.

Without the cordial assistance of the Pope, William would never have reached England. The Pope removed all obstacles, and sent him on his way rejoicing. Rome was the first to rejoice when he won the Battle of the Boyne. It is, therefore, quite out of a piece with this that the admirers of William should adopt the Popes colors, orange and purple—should form a Monastic Order adorned with his livery — and should annually repeat the Roman celebrations with occasional ejaculatory ! prayers for the soul of the Pope.

"Fusion of Hearts and Confusion of Colors."

The Orangemen in this country, says the Dublin Irishman, have been, this year, busy preparing to welcome a Canadian deputation of Orangemen and Redmen. The Orangemen have arrived, but the Redman has not made his appearance. That, we think, is much to be regretted. If Doctor Ornhyatekha had fulfilled the hopes of an expectant crowd we should have been delighted with a nice variety of Colored People:—Redmen, Orangemen, Purplemen, Blackmen, Whitemen or Ribbonmen, Orange-and-Green men.

In former days, under evil auspices and at wicked instigations, there might have been (towards the close of the festivity) Black-and-Bluemen; but that order has passed away. Now, we trust, that from the beginning to the ending, these various tints uniting will be found to form an Irishman. Dr. Waller once gave practical expression to the desire which has always animated the truly patriotic heart, and which, in the present time, seems in the fair way of fulfilment:—

These hues in our bosom be sure to unite, boys;
Let each Irish heart wear these emblems so true;
Be fresh as the green, and be pure as the white, boys;
Be bright as the orange, sincere as the blue.
I care not a jot
Be your scarf white or not,
If you love as a brother each child of the soil;
I ask not your creed,
If you'll stand in her need,
To the land of your birth in the hour of her dolors.
The foe of her foes, let them be who they may;
Then "FUSION OF HEARTS AND CONFUSION OF COLORS"
Be the Irishman's toast on his festival Day.

A Hartford lady got ready to hang herself twice the other day, when callers interrupted. Some people are always coming when not wanted.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

CELT.—By subscribing to the Tuam News, one of whose specialities is its Gaelic departmnt, you will find the kind of lessons you require. The writer, the Very Rev. Ulick Burke, is a scholar of eminence, and his professional experience as an educationist peculiarly fits him to do justice to Irish Literature.—Duffy, Wellington Quay, Dublin, has issued a new edition of Moore's Melodies, translated into Irish by Archbishop McHale.—It is ridiculous to argue that, because in some universities there may be no professorship for a particular language, therefore it is not a language at all. The University of California has no professorship of Hebrew, yet Hebrew is a language. Till lately, the University of Oxford has no professorship of Sancrit. Trinity College, the peer of Oxford, has its professor of Irish, and the government has appropriated a handsome sum to enable him to translate and edit old Irish MSS. Professors of Irish may be found at Cologne, Dusseldorff and Viennaas well as other places. The great German archaiologist, Niebuhr, directed attention long ago to the importance of the Celtic language, and the benefits to be derived from it in the pursuit of comparative philology. The late Baron Nugent, a cabinet minister of Austria, not only studied Irish in Vienna, his birthplace, but refused to recognize a relative who had left Ireland without a knowledge of his mother tongue. So much for the grandest language in Europe being no language at all.

M.—You are in error, The first number of the Nation appeared in Dublin, October 15th, 1842. Its founders were Thomas Davis, John Blake Dillon, and Charles Duffy, the genius who grew first into Charles Gavan, and last (we regret to say) into Sir Charles.

MINER.—Write to the Publisher of the Sligo Champion, Sligo, Ireland, sending him a P. O. Order for $2 50,

OREGON PINE.—Your article, "How to get our Young Married," is set up, but crowded out. Next week our readers can learn the way.

M. L.—The communication respecting the McManus Funeral, from J. Fitzgerald, Cork, is also set up, but crowded out. Will be given next week.

NOTES.

WE are given to understand that our friend, James Barett, whom we had such pleasure in endorsing for Grand Marshal, last St. Patrick's Day, is so heartily supported in many quarters that his re-election to a seat in the Board of Supervisors is a foregone conclusion. We do not think he is the most perfect man in San Francisco, but he is one of the squarest.

P. J. CASEY is put forward almost against his will as a candidate for the office of School Director, a position, for which he is eminently fitted. Some clear-headed practical men like our friend are justly needed at the City Board of Education.

THE Chronicle, in a wild effort at being smart over the Nunan case, misrepresents the character of an honest and honorable man, Edward O'Connell. Next week we will handle that matter without gloves.

POLITICAL SECTARIANISM.

The discussion of religious subjects being something which we do not propose to dabble in, we have nothing to say for or against any particular sect or form of worship so long as its members do not insultingly obtrude their doctrines on us, or under a mask of holy piety endeavor to trample on our rights. When, however, men are incited to cut the throats of their fellows "for the love of God," we conclude in such a case that any religion which deserves the name has been flung to the four winds of heaven, and that the intolerant bigot should no more be sheltered by his garb of sanctity than should the wolf when he puts on the fleece of the lamb. Bigotry is not religion, and has no claim to the reverence which Christian Charity properly receives. In the eyes of the deluded, it is a majestic tree whose tops are lost in the clouds of heaven; in the eyes of angels, it is a stunted and poisonous shrub whose roots are anchored in the depths of pandemonium whence they extract the malice of demons, and fling it broadcast through the upper air. What hecatombs of human victims has not blind and besotted intolerance sacrificed to its fury. We review European history, and deplore all this atrocious insanity, feeling all the while the proud conviction that the United States shall never be so dishonored; that the record of this grand republic shall never be stained by religious persecution; that, in fact, the broad foundations of liberty cemented by the blood of the Revolution, and described in the Constitution, shall never be disturbed; and particularly, that the corner stone on which rests liberty of conscience, or the right of every man to kneel at whatever altar he thinks fit, shall remain in its chosen place till the world is no more. We know only too well what havoc and ruin religious bigotry can effect when carried into social and political life, for it has blighted Ireland like a pestilence, and therefore we have set it down as one of our duties to uproot it, by preaching the pure gospel of that liberality which must ever be the precursor of those free institutions which it is our hope and ambition to see established in our old land as they are here. Having some knowledge of the destructive results of political sectarianism, it will not be a matter of surprise if we feel called on to denounce it, wherever and whenever we meet it. Viewed in the abstract, we should expose its horns and cloven hoof if it raised its head a thousand leagues away: but when it dares approach our very doors, we should be unmindful of our duty as citizens of the United States, if we did not cry aloud, DOWN WITH THE BEAST.

We have invited even the Orangemen of Ireland to fling away their fear and hatred of their fellowmen, and renouncing attachment to English foreigners become Irishmen heart and soul. And, we are glad to say that the "fusion of hearts and confusion of colors" have made goodly progress there. Now, it is strange that when what may be termed the religious pestilence is dying out in Europe, it should begin its fell and insidious attacks in America. Men who are still subjects of England, and others who, though citizens of the United States, are secretly reverential adorers of royalty, have come to these shores; but, like the Bourbons they have neither forgotten nor learned anything. The old feuds are revived, and the old calumnies retailed. Man is forced apart from his brother; the demon of bigotry digs a gulf between them, and daily makes it wider and deeper. Personal dislike degenerates into political conspiracy; and, at the polls, candidates are supported or opposed, not according to their merits or demerits but according to their profession of this religion or that. And this in the latter half of the nineteenth century, and in this land where the Constitution declares that men of all religions are equal before the law, and equally entitled to the rights and privileges of citizens.

Through a deplorable effort to revive in this country the sectarion rancor which disgraced unfortunate Ireland, the streets of New York were two years ago drenched in blood; and on the 12th of July just past, it was deemed expedient to detail 800 armed police and 1000 soldiers, at an expense of $15,000, to escort a procession of 281 Orangeman whom no one was going to assail. With the downfall of the Know-nothing party, we hoped that we had heard the last of any attempt to insult American intelligence and liberality, by mixing Church and State together, and inflicting political ostracism on any man because of his nationality or religious convictions. For some persons, however, the past has no lessons, and the present no warnings. Of late years strenuous efforts have been made in many places in the Union, to build up organizations which, though they may not have the Orange or Know-nothing title, are redolent of their spirit. "Any one rather than an Irishman, any one rather than a Catholic, and ten times any one rather than an Irish Catholic."

Any organization which brings this shiboleth into the political arena, and at the polls ostracises respectable citizens because of their nationality or faith, practically depriving them (so far as its power goes) of the rights guaranteed them by the Constitution, merits and should receive the reprobation of every liberal-minded man in the community. It should be denounced as un-American, unmanly and unchristian. And if, instead of coming out in the light of day, it matures its plans for the injury of our fellow citizens in the dark, then should the conspirators be held up to the scorn of the world as enemies to the best interests and hard-won liberties of the United States.

Now, if any reliance is to be placed in the public press of San Francisco, or in the current belief of the people, we have in our midst such an organization as we have been describing. Whatever may be its title, if any secret society exists in the City or the State which would carry religious intolerance to the polls, and ostracise Catholics because of their faith, it should receive at the earliest opportunity such a rebuke as would deter others from imitating the experiment. We think that the question of religion should be left where it belongs,—between man and his God—and not be dragged through the political puddle; and, furthermore, we think that the individuals who will conspire together to take away the constitutional rights from the men of another faith, are not genuine Americans at all, nor can they be imbued with the true American spirit. We, therefore, pronounce the existence of such a society here or elsewhere, to be abnormal, absurd, un-American, unconstitutional and dangerous. And we should say the same whether the parties assailed were Dutch, Danish, Irish, French or Turkish; or whether the obnoxious religion were Presbyterian, Methodist, Hebrew, Protestant or Catholic

We will resume this subject.

TESTIMONIAL TO MISS McMANUS.

In order to give practical effect to the sympathy and esteem which the patriotic portion of our countrymen entertain towards Miss McManus, and to do so without requiring any one to make a sacrifice which might be felt, the happy and appropriate expedient was hit on of having the portrait of her brother painted by an eminent artist, and when suitably framed, putting it up as a prize to be drawn by the holder of the lucky ticket. Our friend, Mr. Harrington, has, as we said last week, executed his labor of love with ability and success; and now, Mr. Kenny, a man of the Irish persuasion has in hands an ornamental frame such as few pictures in San Francisco can boast of. The gilt frame alone, with its rich traceries, artistic cornices and rustic reliefs, is, we should say worth $100, and may be seen at the picture gallery of Kenny & Co, Windsor House, Fifth and Market streets. The last touch being given to this splendid painting, which so faithfully revives the lineaments of the departed patriot, Terence Bellew McManus, it will be on exhibition next week at Mr. Talbot's store, 28 Kearny street. As the tickets are but half a dollar each, we venture to predict that, when the picture is once seen, there will be quite a rush to secure the chance of being the winner. Parties in the country can obtain tickets by applying to Mr. Talbot.

☞ An important Irish letter next week.

THE POLITICAL CAULDRON.

Hot is no name for the bubbling, boiling and smoky compound which the political chemists, alchymists and jugglers are brewing to ensnare, bamboozle, bewilder and delude us. The liquid is anything but transparent, the fumes anything but pleasant, and the sooty smoke anything but a help to just observation of the premises. Round about the seething cauldron, in the manner of Macbeth's witches, dance a thousand weird shapes; frantic gesticulations are seen, and wild yells are heard, such as one would not expect to find anywhere out of a madhouse. The passers-by are button-holed or incontinently collared; and their ears are pierced by cries of "Lo, here!" and "Lo, there!" Truth is at a fearful discount, and no man can well be certain whether he is listening to bosh, blarney, fact or falsehood. The politicians have come up to the level of England's "merrie monarch," Charles II, of whom Rochester said, "His word no man relies on." Exclamations of "Corruption," "Rings" "Monopolies" "Ruin of the Country," and the "Haythin Chinee" rend the air, and then the dance is renewed, and a discordant hymn arises, coupled with a prayer that the gods above or the demons below may give them a pluck at the public goose,—the stupid bird—and in this hymn take part the Radical, Conservative and Liberal Republicans; the old-line Democrats and their brothers of the New Departure; the Taxpayers (including hundreds who would scorn paying anything, much less taxes; the Liberal Reformers who won't reform; the People's Alliance who have a penchant for Chinese pig-tails; the Citizens' Voters (a cognomen based on the assumption that citizens have no votes); the People's Union having an eye to railroad bossing; and the one-horse clubs that have an eye to themselves. Under cover of the loud-canted psalm, many a wily hypocrite, with a twist of the neck which the sheriff should improve, and a wink that would banish all thought of honesty, whispers the bland whisper—"Come and See me." His right palm is before his lips, and the left behind his back, ready for the check which is to enlighten him, like a guide-book, on the road he has to travel.

All this world would be fun for us, if we could forget that as American citizens interested in the well-being of the City and the State, we have to pay our portion of the reckless expense incurred by those players of political comedy. Parties have added plank after plank to their platform, or torn plank after plank from it, till little is left of the old parties but the name. The main business of the Nationalist being to do all it can for the elevation of Ireland and the Irish, we stand aloof from all parties, and neither endorse them nor denounce them. We started this paper with the fixed determination of keep the cause of Irish nationality, apart from, and unsullied by, the mire of partizan politics, and to that determination we will adhere. But, though we hold ourselves completely independent of all parties, we do not mean to so far seclude ourselves from current affairs, as to be blind to the things going on around us. If, for example, we find that when the nominations for the approaching election are made, candidates are presented whose record betrays an anti-Irish or illiberal spirit; if we find men thrust themselves forward, seeking positions for which their poltroonery renders them unfit; if we find on any ticket, bigots who would if they had the power, exclude from all offices of honor or emolument, the men of a proscribed nationality or faith; then, we are bound to oppose such men not because they are of this party or that, but because their principles are neither truly republican, democratic nor American; and because the elevation of such men to office would be prejudicial to the public interests.

On the other hand, if we find men of ability, experience and integrity coming forward; if we find candidates whose past record is a good guarantee for their future course; and if, in addition to these qualifications, they have evinced a kindly spirit towards our Cause, or given it a helping hand; then, no matter whether those candidates be Republicans, Democrats, Taxpayers or Reformers; no matter whether they be American, French, Irish or German, so long as we believe them honest and capable, they shall have our endorsement and all the support we can give them. Next week we shall have something more to say on this point. Meantime, we think our readers will best prepare to do their duty to the State by asking themselves, not what party a candidate may belong to, but what are his qualifications for the office he seeks, and what guarantees can he offer for the honorable fulfilment of his campaign promises.

CARDINAL CULLEN FOR POPE.

The Continental press is discussing the probabilities as to who shall be the successor of His Holiness, Pius IX, and it is generally believed that if an Italian is not elected, the chances are favorable to Cardinal Cullen. It is well that the choice of a Pope does not rest with the press, as if it did the world might see something odd. In this connection, the Irish Times thus moralizes:—"In this sensational age, facts often crop out stranger in their reality than any of the labored fictions of the imagination. A few years ago no one would discuss the absurd possibilty of a man of Irish descent being Military Dictator in Spain, or of another, superseding Bourbons and Bonapartes, being President of the French Republic; yet O'Donnell was the former in Spain, and MacMahon is now the latter in France." Similarly, Dr. Cullen might possibly be Pope; he probably won't.

General Quesada has enrolled 300 men in New York as recruits for the Cudan insurgents.

CHIEF CROWLEY.

There never was, there never will be, a police officer who could please everybody. The offenders whom he brings before the courts are imprimis dead against him; the whole Hoodlum element regards him with disfavor; and if the influence of one party puts him into office, the opposing party is bound by the acknowledged laws of political warfare to try to put him out. Hence, we are not surprised that all citizens do not unanimously favor him; not surprised, indeed, that an outcry should be raised against him, coupled with a little clamor for a new broom. The present incumbent of the office of Chief is acknowledged by all who have no axe to grind, or prejudices to satisfy, to be a thoroughly competent officer, and to have discharged his duties during the past seven years with an amount of success that is remarkable, when we take into consideration the scanty means which the City puts at his disposal.

We would not think of putting his name at the head of this article, but that we have learned he is a great sinner in the eyes of that sectarian, proscriptive, un-American and anti-Irish body, the "Crescents." They did well to go outside christendom for a smybol, inasmuch as their illiberality unfits them for anything charitable. When they oppose a man, and send the "buzz" round to undermine his character and destroy his influence, they furnish prima facie evidence that he is respectable.

Influenced by this consideration, we enquired into the case. We find he has an Irish name, and that is sin number one. Though a native American, he is not ashamed of the Island of his race, and that is sin number two. He doesn't spend all the Sunday in the enjoyment of rural scenery, but goes to church for a little while, and that is sin number three He won't put a efficient officer off the force, because that officer may displease a politician, and that is sin number four. He can't, out of the limited number of police assigned him, put a guard on each of 300 Chinese dens of ill-fame, and that is sin number five. He can't do the impossible, isn't perfect, can't swear that he'll be canonized as a saint, and that is sin number—well about a hundred.

To protect life and property in this city of 180,000 souls, he has assigned him 100 men. Of these, four are clerks, four are prison-keepers, six are detectives, five are located in Hayes Valley, and ten do duty as Harbor police. Counting these out of 100, and making allowance for occasional sickness and special details, and then dividing the remainder into two watches, we have an average of about thirty-two policemen on duty at any one time, and this to protect the great bulk of the city, abate the Chinese nuisance, prevent crime, make criminals amenable to justice, recover property, and in a word do all the work of the police department of a great city, a work done as well and efficiently in San Francisco as in any other city in the Union.

For want of space we must refrain till next week from giving many reasons why Chief Crowley should be re-elected by an overwhelming majority.

Writing with a Scissors.

The scissors are almost as useful to the newspaper man as to the tailor. Something more, however, is necessary to carry on the art of either. The tailor requires cloth, a needle and thread; the editor ought to have paper, a pencil and a little brains. It appears, nevertheless, that to make up some of the Eastern weeklies, neither pencil, pen nor brains are necessary. Warned by the kindly admonition of the American Gael, we have this week peered suspiciously into the editorial columns of our exchanges, and find in one of them at least articles which we read before. No credit or acknowledgement is given by the literary pirate. The most he does is to mutilate the original that others may think it is his own bantling. The lion's hide will, of course, be pulled off at last over the donkey's ears. He learns too late that, though practices like his may deceive the vulgar, they disgust those whose opinion is worth having. The Gael speaks of these journalistic frauds in the following lively fashion:—

"Some of our New York Irish weeklies are fearfully and wonderfully made, and our respected San Francisco friend, the IRISH NATIONALIST, has just been badly 'sold' by one of them. The Pacific Coast editor copied a very clever article headed 'Napoleon' and credited the same to a New York paper with an Irish name, innocently thinking that because said article appeared in the editorial columns of the latter, it was, therefore, original and fresh from the editor's pen. In searching for matter, one day, for our Spirit of the Irish-American Press, we came upon this article about Napoleon. We had just read the same thing in a Scotch paper published several weeks previously; so we flung away the whole bundle of Irish-American journals, and moralized that, like the Heathen Chinee,

For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain,
Those papers were truly peculiar."

England's Little Difficulty.

The savage Ashantees are in earnest about their war, have 30,000 men under arms, and are pressing on the English settlements with the fierce determination of preventing further encroachments. The London Times thinks the Ashantee war quite a formidable affair.

The government of Queensland, Australia, thinking that ten thousand skilled laborers would be a great accession to the colony, offers to pay their passage from Great Britain. The Legislature of California, though needing settlers as badly as Queensland, would rather give facilities for the immigration of the Heathen Chinee than to pay a dollar to help white men to come here.

MR. CARR'S TICKET.

Having little acquaintance with politicians, and no acquaintance at all with the tricks which they practice behind the scenes, we are not ashamed to acknowledge ourselves puzzled by the following article which the Post has devoted to show how respectable are the candidates whom it has to oppose. It may be, that, like the Chronicle the Post has experienced a conversation; or it may be, that its object is to "damn with faint praise." All the gentlemen named being well off in the world, and most of them having already some connection with the public treasury, it is possible that our lively neighbor wishes to throw out a gentle hint that they ought now give others a turn. We don't know whether Mr. Carr pulled the wires or not, but possibly we may be better informed hereafter. We have no space, this week for further comment, but as the article is something out of the general line, we give it to our readers:—

BILLY CARR has put up the best and most respectable Legislative ticket he could make from his collection of candidates, and deserves great credit for his good management. WILLIAM H. SEARS, for the Senate, is a bright, smart, intelligent man, who served well in the Legislature. He has been selected to head the ticket because he has hitherto been opposed to CARR, and was thrice defeated by that gentleman for Congress. This gives the ticket something of an anti-railroad look to people who know nothing of what is beneath the surface. Mr. SEARS is a patent lawyer. Mr. CARR, through Messrs. SARGENT and GORHAM, has some influance in Washington. IRVING M. SCOTT is a member of the Taxpayers' Nominating Convention, a good speaker and a pleasant, intelligent gentleman. He is in a foundry and machine business, and recently fitted up the steamer "Mohongo," which Mr. CARR bought from the Government very cheaply. These are the two Senators. The Assemblymen are also very good men. Mr. JONATHAN KITTRIDGE, of the Phœnix Iron Works, is a remarkable citizen, who has had from Mr. CARR some fat contracts for iron work on the Mint, and it is understood that if he acts right in the Assembly Mr. CARR will give him the contract for the iron work on the new Appraiser's store. DONALD MCLENNAN is a gentleman of wealth and energy—a clear-headed, hard-handed, well educated Scotchman. He has two or three hundred Chinamen in his employ, and has, by the grace of Mr. CARR, the contract for supplying the army and navy on this coast with blankets. J. M. JOHNSON, of J. C. JOHNSON & Co., saddlers, furnish saddles, etc., for the Quartermaster's Department on this coast. P. H. BLAKE is a good business man, and has an active friend in Mr. ZERKE WILSON, to whose influence with Mr. CARR he is probably indebted for his nomination. CHARLES M. LEAVY was formerly receiving clerk in the Appraiser's Department and is now in the cigar business. He was a strong friend of COLE, and helps to give the ticket an anti-CARR look. SETH H. WETHERBEE—Well, as the Bulletin would say, "everybody knows SETH." He will bear future reference. FREDERICK CLAY, of the California Cracker Company, is one of the sharpest men in the State. We believe he has, by grace of Mr. CARR, the contract for supplying the army and navy with crackers.

H. H. BANCROFT, of A. L. BANCROFT & Co., has the largest printing office and book store in San Francisco. He furnishes all the stationary books, etc., needed in all of Mr. CARR's offices—the Custom House, Mint, Surveyor's Office, etc. He is a very good man. JOHN W. TAYLOR, of WEAVER, TAYLOR & Co. He sells hose. The Government uses a great deal of hose at Mare Island, the Presodio, etc. So does the city of San Francisco. O. P. VON RHEIN, is the real estate and intelligence offie man. What is his connection with Mr. CARR we don't know. We can't be expected to know everything. SAMUEL FOSTER, of FOSTER & DOLE, is a respectable merchant. He furnishes the supplies for the Marine Hospital. Collector SHANNON can gave particulars. JULIUS BUHLERT is Secretary of the Grocers' Protective Union, and is a sop thrown to the Germans. Whether Mr. CARR buys any groceries or not, we don't know. This is the ticket, and it does Mr. CARR credit. As the Chronicle says of it:

The ticket as represented challenges criticism The railroad influence, that one time was supposed to be paramount in the Convention, disappeared under the strong pressure of public opinion, and the Convention nominated a ticket which from first to last, must commend itself to the good sense and indorsement of the people of San Francisco.

We congratulate the people of San Francisco on this glorious victory over the Railroad Ring.

The Parson and the Widow.

The case of Maria C. Mills vs. W. H. Knapp, tried a few days ago, in Cook County, Ill., shows the efficacy of hypocrisy and the blindness of amorous widowhood. The plaintiff kept a boarding-house in Chicago, had a bank account, and was none of your etherial beings. On the contrary, she was voluptuous and substantial, and would have been a safe object to cling to in a hurricane. The Rev. Mr. Knapp became one of her boarders. He was very tall and thin, a little pale, rigidly pious and slightly pulmonary. At his matutinal devotions he addressed the Almighty with great volubility and familiarity which put the widow off her guard. He was profuse in his attentions, but said never a word about a wife he had deserted. Notwithstanding his thinness, the widow gave her hand and heart to the holy man, and he rewarded her affection by carrying off her cash to the amount of $4,471. She got a verdict for the amount, but as the Rev. gentleman has betaken himself to parts unknown, the decree of Court will not reconstruct the boarding establishment which his amorous piety demolished.

Special Notice.

HARRY FRANCIS, the well known merchant tailor, manager for many years with Abraham, has left his employ, and has opened a first class Merchant Tailoring Establishment next door, known as the "Opposition Store," No 25 Second Street, with L. Morris, the celebrated Merchant Tailor.

P. S.—Old friends, don't forget the man who studied your interest.

ONE Lewis, held on a charge of cruelty to seamen, has been acquitted on one charge. Two deals more of the same kind, and he can "take a walk."

CITY NEWS OF THE WEEK.

TEMPERANCE.—The Sunday evening entertainments in the several Temperance halls continue attract and please crowded audiences. These halls have ceased to be large enough for their purpose, though the least will accommodate a thousand persons. For the Father Matthew Society, John Farrell, in imitation of the famous Barny Sheehan, delivered a very interesting lecture on "Human Nature." Colonel Thompson addressed the Dashaways, and Dr. Gibbons the Legion. A noticeable feature of the evening among the Christian Young Men was the sudden conversion of a band of Chief Whitney's firemen. They swore the pledge like good fellows to whom cocktails were unknown, while the orchestra sang of that happy time when "Young Men drink no more." And it may be remarked that, in each of the halls, amateur vocalists are sometimes unwisely permitted to insult the good taste of the audience by singing questionable verses. If the committees can't prevent this, no false delicacy should prevent those present from hissing rudeness off the stage. Talking of Sunday evening entertainments puts us in mind of asking the members of the Irish Confederation, what has become of their shining lights, or why have they abandoned the patriotic course of giving weekly lectures on instructive Irish subjects.

THE DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION was called to order Monday evening last by Dr. Shorb, who explained that candidates were required to come forward and make little speeches. Captain McDonald, the nominee for Mayor, escaped the ordeal by timely retreating, but his modesty was understood; Munroe Ashbury sent a letter of acceptance and promise of good conduct, as did many others; Thomas Golden, the nominee for Public Administrator, got on his feet, proclaimed himself a sound Democrat, and an opponent of all monopolies in general, and of the Burlingame treaty in particular; Sloss, Ford and Humphries endorsed the platform; Cockrill, the nominee for Chief of Police, will go the whole hog on the ticket the whole day of election; Dr. Rice reviewed the merits of Trinity College and Hindostan; James Denman wanted the school-books let alone, and be as unchangeable as the laws of the Medes and Persians; Captain Farrish when called for was up in Oregon, but had a friend in court; Judge Pennie said he could work better than talk; Judge Durham was sound on the goose from the time of Andrew Jackson; and one Judge Travers spoke a good deal of himself, and a good deal also of swindles, frauds and the ruin of the country. Verily, conventions of all kinds are very confusing.

SURVEYOR-GENERAL HARDENBURGH has not only hurled back the accusations against his character, but has turned with terrific energy upon his accusers, and has dragged their damnable transactions into the full light of day. The Post adds, that could the land history of California be fully written, it would exhibit a record of greed, perjury, corruption and high-handed robbery, for which we do not believe a parallel could be found in the history of the world. It is squarely asserted that one of the land pirates and most successful swindlers is W. S. Chapman, who was wroth and vindictive because General Hardenburgh refused to help him in grabbing two million and a half acres. If a tithe of this be true, some men are blest with a conscience; nothing less would satisfy it than a tract one-sixth larger than the States of Deleware and Rhode Island combined.

BARON MCGINN disdains to put himself up, or allow any other man to put him up as candidate for any office—Federal, State or Municipal. He is ready, however, to take the wholesale contract of putting the sand drifts of Lone Mountain Cemetery over the pure hearts of all trading politicians, blear-eyed bummers, and slippery shysters who make a purgatory or a pandemonium of the purlieus of every political convention which assembles for the confusion of public affairs. We shouldn't cry our eyes out if the Baron had orders now for coffins to supply said contract.

THE fervor of politics has invaded several of the churches. The scriptures are daily searched for texts to suit the questions of the hour, and religion seems to be a matter of secondary importance in many of the recent "holdings forth." We take the liberty of questioning the propriety of thus confounding the pulpit and the platform. It muddles men's brains, which may account for the patriotic proposal of a candidate who offered for $8,000 to sacrifice himself by discharging the duties of a $4,000 office.

THE English Government is organizing a corps of "tiger fighters," for service in India. There is, as the Chronicle truly says, a large number of individuals habituated to that kind of warfare to be found loafing around the streets of San Francisco, and we would be exceedingly happy to make a present of them to Queen Victoria. If the Indian tigers get the better of them and clean out the whole lot, our grief would be largely tempered with pious resignation.

THE Chronicle is going to spend part of $150,000 in giving each of its subscribers a map, on which the Call accuses its rival of being sold to Stanford. The Chronicle replies it is nobody's business where it gets money to be enterprising and generous. It ought to be somebody's business to shield us from being bored so often by personal squabbles.

POLICE JUDGE LOUDERBACK's marriage has not made him anything more tender, if we may draw conclusions from the fact that one morning this week he imposed fines on the offending to the tune of $2,210. It is possible that he did not sleep at home the night before.

THE programme laid down for themselves by the City dailies, for the next few weeks, is apparently to make reckless assertions intended to knock down their opponents like nine-pins. Frowning brows will be plentiful till the election agony shall have passed. A dozen parties are jumbled together in a confused way, and few people know where they stand politically. Meantime, the pickpockets in the crowd are industriously plying their vocation.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—David Crockett, with the old California favorite, Frank Mayo, in the title role, has been the attraction up to Wednesday, when the Streets of New York was presented. Same bill to-night. On Monday next the eminent artiste, Miss Charlotte Thompson, will make her reappearance in the new play, Jane Eyre.

A GENIUS rejoicing in the historical appellation of Napoleon Beauregard, put down his name and coin for one hundred dollars, on Louderbacks subscription list. He was induced to take this course by his unwarranted abuse of the rod, in castigating his step-daughter.

THE Chronicle oddly says that "it is the wish of the people that no member of the present Board of Supervisors shall be re-elected." Does it want a greenhorn board to commence learning the alphabet of municipal business?

THE Grover & Baker sewing machine company, rented a machine to a party, who generously "sacrificed" it to one J, L. Hicks. G. & B. brought suit to recover: success crowned their effort, and J. L. H. is minus machine, coin, and faith in "bargains."

Note.—That Hicks is not our Hicks.

WOODWARD has again taken a "new departure," and now charges but five cents a ride. For which the Chronicle says "may the Lord reward him;" but as the "live paper" is given more to cursing than to praying, we doubt the efficacy of its blessing.

J. J. McBride who formerly exercised sway round the corners of Montgomery street, under the potentious title of the "King of Pain," figures at present in St. Louis as the "Grant Cholera King."

A Merino ram, "Hanibal" by name, has been sold this week for his wool. The price was $10 per pound, and the cost of the "critter" footed up $300. "Wool Gathering" is rarely so profitable.

W. A. PLUNKETT, the "point of order" member from the First, in the Board of Education, is particularly anxious that the public should understand that he desires no elevation beyond the sphere he will occupy after December 1st.

THE Post accuses members of the Taxpayers convention of disturbing emigrant trains, on their arrival, by their persistent search for an available candidate for Mayor.

JNO. HALEY, who misinterpreted Webster, and misunderstood the difference between polite and profane language, paid twenty dollars into the County Treasury.

TELEGRAMS OF FRIDAY, AUGUST 8.

The Carlists have attacked Oyarzun in Guipuzcoa. They claim a victory at Elgansta, in the same province. The bombardment of Valencia is suspended, the Insurgents having sent out a flag of truce to make terms for surrender. Marshal MacMahon refuses to hand over to the Spaniards the Cure of Santa Cruz, the militant churchman, now a fugitive in France. The Cortes, by a vote of 184 to 1, passed a vote granting constitutional guarantees to Porto Rico. The deputy from that colony declared that the island would always remain faithful to Spain. The Carlists and other Insurgents have proved themselves formidable disturbers of order, but they have also proved that no other Government than the Federal Republic is hereafter possible in Spain.

The Count de Chambord and the Count de Paris have met in Vienna, and are said to be plotting for the re-establishment of monarchy in France.

Japan has a formidable revolt. Minister Motley is seriously ill in England, and Victor Hugo is dying.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

X. TWIABA X.

THE WHITE SAGE.—A new preparation is offered to the public for the restoration of the hair by Dr. L. Terry, 323 Third street, and from the great number of testimonials published by prominent citizens of Elko, Nevada, of its efficacy in giving strength to the hair, and the speedy return of it to those who have been bald, oblige us to look upon it with more favor than the thousand other preparations already in the market. The Elko Independent says: "A decoction of White Sage will accomplish more in restoring bald heads, fastening falling hair, and renovating and giving healthy action to the scalp than a whole store of the usual remedies advertised for that purpose. Hundreds now in Nevada can testify to this fact, and a trial will convince any doubting Joseph that what we say of it in this respect will be borne out by results, if he will give it a fair trial." If such is the case, the Doctor will reap a rich harvest, for no other city can boast of as many bald-headed people as San Francisco The medicine can be obtained from every druggist. None genuine without the signature of L. TERRY, M, D., on the outside of the wrapper. HEATHFIELD, BOGEL & Co., General Agents. Sole Distiller, DR. L. TERRY, Elko, Nevada.

SPECIAL NOTICE—.An article that will firmly mend Furniture, Crockery, Glasswase, Statuary, Meerschaum, Dolls, Toys, Leather, and all ordinary household articles likely to be broken, is as dispensable as it is valuable. These requisites are to be found in the well known GIANT CEMENT, which is put up in tin cans only. It invariably gives satisfaction, and is now for sale by druggists, stationers, grocers, and the Giant Cement Company, No. 417 Washington street (opposite the Post Office) San Francisco. *

WHAT IS ALUCOLEIN?—A preparation of Cod Liver Oil, without any disagreeable taste; the most efficacious remedy for all pulmonary complaints. Prepared and sold by James G. Steele & Co. 521 Montgomery street.

THE HIBERNIA HALL, 246 Third Street, is newly fitted up in superb style, and fit for the accommodation of large social parties and military dis lays. It is one of the best Public Halls in the city. The new improvements deserve the attention of public speckers, In this Hall the movements of the audience create no noise Silence is the ally of eloquence. *

THE RISING OF '98;

With an Account of the Volunteers, French Alliances and Expeditions.

CHAPTER II.

IRISH NATIONAL GUARDS—PROPOSED REVIVAL OF THE VOLUNTEERS—HAMILTON ROWAN AND OTHERS PERSECUTED—THE UNITED SOCIETY ATTACKED—IRISH AND ENGLISH OATHS—NEW ORGANIZATION OF THE SOCIETY—ACCOUNT OF THE DIRECTORIES.

The United Irishmen, observing that three millions of chiefly Protestant Americans, had obtained all they desired by armed force, and that the efforts of the French nation, who used the same natural means, had been rewarded with like success, desired to imitate the examples before their noses, and become a free nation. They either wished to revive the constitutional assemblies of armed Volunteers, or to form, like the French, a new body of national guards. Accordingly, in 1792, money was raised by subscription, to arm and embody a number of men in the metropolis, under the title of NATIONAL GUARDS, with a handsome green uniform, which was adopted as the national color. The buttons were inscribed with a harp, the armorial ensign of Ireland, divested of the English crown (which is usually cocked above it,) in order to denote, as was supposed, the intended abolition of English monarchy or foreign connexion.

Accordingly, the 9th of December was appointed as a day of general muster for the guards. This assembly of constitutional force or native militia, was, however, prevented by the English-connection or foreign-ascendancy party. On the 8th of December, the day immediately preceding that of the intended parade, a proclamation was issued by the English viceroy and committee or council, from the English Castle of Dublin, Ship-street, prohibiting all such assemblies, which they called seditious; and commanded the government magistrates to suppress them by military force, in case they should assemble. As the English garrison had been increased in order to overawe the citizens, the National Guards did not assemble, lest they should be treacherously attacked or slaughtered by a greater number of the English army.

The leaders of the United Irishmen, however met on the 14th of December, and published a proclamation, exhorting the Volunteers to resume their arms as formerly, for the maintenance of tranquility throughout the kingdom, against foreign and internal enemies; and advising the Protestants of Ireland, to choose deputies for provincial assemblies, prior to the meeting of a general convention, which they declared to be advisable, in order to combine and make common cause with the great body of their Catholic fellow-countrymen. On account of this manifesto, Archibald Hamilton Rowan, who had acted as secretary to the above assembly, was arrested by the English in the following month. This celebrated Protestant patriot was a gentleman of respectable family and fortune, remarkable for his great strength and courage, of a most amiable character, and the warmest philantrophy. Such a man, because he desired to see Ireland ruled by Irishmen, was prosecuted, fined, imprisoned, and only escaped death by flying into exile. And yet the very English who put a man to death if he opposes English connection with, or rather ascendancy over Ireland, would also put the same man to death, if he tried to establish a French connection or union with England. What miserable inconsistency!

On the 11th of March 1793, a paper notice or proclamation was issued from the English Castle of Dublin, Ship street, prohibiting all further parades or reviews of the Irish. This paper had the intended effect of dissolving the Irish National Militia or Volunteers, who were never once named by their well-known title, but included under the term "armed bodies."

At a meeting of the society of United Irishmen, held in February 1793, the Hon. Simon Butler in the chair; Oliver Bond, secretary; a declaration was brought before the meeting, and adopted by them, condemning as illegal the proceedings of the secret committee of the Irish House of Lords. This committee which had been appointed to inquire into the recent disturbances, compelled witnesses to answer questions on oath, compromising themselves, and directed to the discovery of evidence in support of prosecutions already going forward. For the above declaration of the society, Butler and Bond were brought before the bar of the Irish House of Lords, and on admitting the adoption of the declaration by the Society, the Lord Chancellor pronounced the judgment of the House, viz—"That they should be imprisoned for six months, and obliged to pay a fine of £500 each to the king of England."

In January 1794, two years after the publication of the above-named proclamation of the society, Hamilton Rowan was brought to a mock trial, and found guilty on English law, by a corrupt Irish jury. This Protestant gentleman was condemned to be robbed (or fined, as the cant term goes) of £500. He was also sentenced to be confined for two long years in the English prison of Newgate, and afterwards to give security for £4000 to the English king George, during seven years. In June of the same year, Dr. William Drennan, a literary man and physician, who had been chairman in the same assembly, was tried, but fortunately acquitted. James Napper Tandy, a citizen of Dublin, and a most active member of political or philantrophic societies, who on arrest had given bail, made his escape the preceding year to avoid a trial. Hamilton Rowan also contrived by stratagem, to escape from the English prison, and get abroad. His resolution to attempt this flight was hastened by the arrest of a famous Irish Protestant patriot, the Rev. William Jackson, who had gone on a political mission to France. In Jackson's correspondence, Hamilton Rowan was implicated, and might, in consequence, have been put to death by the English.

In 1794, the English government, feeling alarmed at the progress and principles of the United Irish Society, directed its vengeance against it. Accordingly, on the 4th of May 1794, their Society's usual place of meeting in Dublin, was attacked by the police; their meeting was dispersed, and their papers plundered. Several of the leaders had already been prosecuted and imprisoned, many of the more timid part of the members of the Society, had retired; the more determined, honest, or republican portion however remained.

After the first Society of United Irishmen had been suppressed, a new organization of the body took place; a new constitution was formed, and an oath of secrecy or test was adopted, to be first taken by all members previous to admission. The test begins, "In the awful presence of God," and runs thus: "I, A. B., do voluntarily declare that I will persevere in endeavouring to form a brotherhood of affection among Irishmen of every religious persuasion, and that I will also persevere in my endeavours to obtain an equal, full, and adequate representation of all the people of Ireland. I do further declare, that neither hopes, fears, rewards, or punishments, shall ever induce me, directly or indirectly, to inform on or give evidence against any member or members of this or similar societies, for any act or expression of theirs, done or made collectively or individually, in or out of this Society—in pursuance of the spirit of this obligation."

Here, no doubt, the reader will not fail to observe the great spirit of fairness and toleration which distinguished the oath of the United Irishmen, from that of the United Englishmen in former times. In the United Irish oath, there is not one word said about swearing any English or foreigners to obey the Irish. Every native Irishman is simply called on to make a natural, grateful, and religious vow before the great, good, and just God, to love his own fellow-countrymen, and serve his native land. Moreover, no Englishman, Scotchman, Welshman, German, Dutchman, Hanoverian, or any other beggarly foreigner, was ever compelled by the United Irishmen to perjure himself by taking an unnatural blasphemous oath to obey the Irish—for is it not blasphemous to swear before God against the very land which he allowed one to be born in? The English in former times, on the contrary, never had such a fair form of oath, as that of the United Irishmen. Formerly the English ruffians, after first murdering, burning, robbing, and ruining the greater part of the unoffending Irish; used then like loyal, merciful, and religious enemies, present on the sword's point an oath of allegiance, to be quickly swallowed down by the remainder of the natives. By this compulsory oath, a true-blooded Irishman was obilged to swear, against his grain, to obey or serve some tyrannical fellow or other, called king of England, no matter who he might chance to be. Thus, decendants of our old native Irish kings—men with the pure blood of such heroes as Niall the Grand (the triumphant invader of Britain and Gaul,) or old Brian Boru (the Dane-smasher), coursing through their veins—have been compelled by rapacious and blood-thirsty English men, to swear—what?—yes, gracious heavens! to swear to obey and serve a whole parcel of murdering mongrels and wicked foreigners, such as James Stuart, a Scotchman, who robbed all the Ulster Irish of their tenant-right, and was moreover addicted to dark and unnatuarl crimes; or William of Orange, who robbed and butchered the Irish, made and broke the treaty of Limerick, and murdered the Scotch clan M'Donald, in the vale of Glencoe; or George Guelph, the Hanoverian, who murdered Count Konigsmark, and kept ths Irish as slaves under infamous Penal laws.

In order to answer the necessary purposes of secrecy, concert, and uniformity of action, a remodelling of the National Association was effected; and it would be difficult perhaps to devise a plan more efficient than that which was now adopted. In order to avoid the mixture of persons unknown to each other, it was decreed, that no society should consist of more than twelve persons, and those, as nearly as possible, of the same street or neighborhood. By each of those societies of twelve, a secretary was chosen; and the secretaries of five such societies, formed a committee, called the Lower Baronial. The next step in the scale was the Upper Baronial Committee, to constitute which, ten Lower Baronials sent each a member; and above this again rose the District or County Committee, composed of one member chosen from each Upper Baronial.

Having provided by these successive layers, as it were, of delegated authority—each exercising a superintendence over that immediately below it, for the purpose of organizing the several counties and populous towns; they next superadded a Provincial Committee, which was composed of two or sometimes three members, elected from each of the County Committees. Last of all came the Executive—the apex of the the system—which consisted of five persons chosen in such a manner from the Provincial Committees, as to leave the members of the latter in entire ignorance as to the individuals selected. Over the whole body thus organized, the Executive possessed full command, and could transmit its orders with but little risk through the whole range of the Union in this manner; one member of the Executive, communicated them to one member of the Provincial Committeee, and he again to the secretary of the County Committee, who in like passed them down through the secretaries of the Baronials, and these on to the secretaries of the subordinate societies.

The facility with which it was found that this plan—though at first designed for a purely civil organization—could be adapted, without changing its structure, to military purposes, rendered it a doubly formidable engine in the hands that finally directed it. The secretary of each subordinate society of twelve, was easily transformed into a sergeant or corporal; the delegate of five societies to a Lower Baronial, became a captain, with 60 men under his command; and the delegate of ten Lower Baronials, to a County or District Committee, took rank as a colonel, at the head of a battalion of 600 men.

In May 1795, the civil organization of the Society was completed in Ulster and the military organization in August 1796. "An erroneous opinion," says Dr. Madden, "prevails with respect to the direction of the affairs of the United Irish Societies throughout the country. The directory of the Leinster societies, the principal members of which, subsequent to 1796, were—Arthur O'Connor, Thomas Addis Emmet Dr. M'Nevin, Oliver Bond, and others of the Dublin leaders, at different periods, it is commonly supposed was the only one in existence; such, however, is not the fact. Ultimately there were four directories, one for each of the provinces. The Ulster Directory was the first established. The Munster Directory was only in existence a short time before the suppression of the rebellion. The Connaught Directory was likewise of short duration, and its action was more limited than any of the others. The Ulster Directory was formed about the beginning of 1795. In 1796, Oliver Bond was associated with its other members. In his examination he states, that "he acted with that association in conducting the affairs of the Union; and when the Leinster organization was completed, early in 1797, he was regularly elected a member of the Executive, though he declined to act officially. He, however, continued in the confidence of the Union, and was consulted by them on all affairs of moment."

These measures, it is generally imagined, originated with the latter. Arthur O'Conor became a member of the Leinster Directory in November 1796. Lord Edward Fitzgerald was nominated at the same time. T. A. Emmet was not appointed till January 1797, and Dr. M'Nevin about the same period. "None of them were members of the United system until September or October 1796. In November 1796, Arthur O'Conor, accompanied by Lord Edward Fitzgerald, visited Belfast on the occasion of the former offering himself as a candidate for the representation of the county of Antrim. They took a house in the immediate vicinity of Belfast, and resided there for some months. During their stay, their intercourse with the Belfast leaders prepared the way for the combined action of the Dublin and Northern societies."

The Westmeath Prisoners.

A correspondent, whose letter appears in the Irishman of July 12, appeals to the country at large for aid for the families of the unfortunate victims of British Coercion. From his communication, we take the following striking passages.

SIR—The people of this unfortunate country are growing day by day more accustomed to Government by Coercion. Every right cherished by freemen is being gradually wrested from them, while at the same time they are asked to bow their heads meekly, and thank Heaven they enjoy the blessed privilege of living within the shadow of the glorious British Constitution.

One of the most oppressive and arbitrary measures that ever outraged and insulted a nation or a people has been recently re-enacted—that which is popularly known as the Westmeath Act; and yet that county, in common with all Ireland, enjoys a singular immunity from crime—a fact which is borne testimony to by our rulers, even while they are engaged in devising some fresh and more ingenious method of punishing us as criminals.

There are at this moment detained in custody under the Lord Lieutenant's warrant, a number of men, the inmates of a convict prison, who have never been tried—have never been brought face to face with their accusers, and by a well-defined maxim of English law are, therefore, presumably innocent. What has been their offence? None, or most assuredly they would stand at the bar of justice to answer for it: but that is a privilege denied them. Why are they immured, then, within the gloomy precincts of a prison? A policeman had his suspicious concerning their loyalty: or perhaps some one of those poor and humble men may have been "a village Hampden, who the petty tyrant of his fields withstood." He may have had the stamp of manhood upon his brow and scorned the grovel in the dust at the feet of some local despot. Forsooth, he is, therefore, a dangerous character in the eyes of his masters, and the aid of the law—an exceptional and tyrannical law—is invoked to remove him to a prison, where he is treated with terrible severity.

Perhaps it is not generally known, and it will scarcely be credited, that those men could have long ago obtained their release on the condition of confessing their guilt. Was ever a proposition more monstrous? Plead guilty to a charge of which they never heard! But, to their honor be it told, they indignantly refused to purchase freedom on such a condition, thereby affording their jailers some justification for their arrest and detention.

The Government have chosen to continue this arbitrary act for two years more, when the annals of the country are comparatively free from crime; and thus they have challenged the opinion of the nation. The nation can best reply to the challenge by succouring the families of the men they determine to hold in prison; for every penny given for so laudable an object will not alone be a work of charity but a protest against coercion.

Young ladies use powder, perhaps because they think it will make them go off.

THE SPRIG OF GREEN.

At Fredericksburg, on that great day,
Ere yet the strife began,
Along the battle lines of blue,
The general's order ran.
Win we or lose, our country's curse
Upon the wretch who shirks;
But honor to the man that dies
The nearest to the works.

Before them rose the giant range
Of hills, in martial round;
From whose grim tops all bodefully,
The bristling cannon frowned.
No break within that iron line,
But death from left to right;
And Meagher with his Irish lay
Before St. Mary's height.

No gloom was there, but every face
As careless and as bright!
As if it was a wedding morn,
And not a day of fight.
And in their caps, though all around
Nor tree nor shrub was seen,
They wore, Heaven knows from whence procured,
Each man, a sprig of green.

Not long they waited for the sound,
That told the strife begun;
Hark! from the river's further side!
It is the signal gun;
A thousand cannon from the hills,
Thundered in fierce acclaim;
And all the mighty line of blue,
Swept upward through the flame.

Of what avail are words to paint
The strife that none can tell;
The hurrah from the Union host,
The wild Confederate yell;
The sabre's clank, the horsemen's tramp,
The scream of shot and shell,
And groans of dying men that went
To make the mimic hell.

All day against those awful heights,
Our lines were hurled in vain;
All day the shattered ranks closed up
But to be torn again;
Until the sun withdrew his light,
As if for very shame,
And night came down upon the field,
To end the bloody game.

The morning broke all fair and bright,
Upon the dead array;
And lovingly, on hill and plain,
The blessed sunbeams lay.
The fight was done, the field was won,
The blue had lost the day,
And from their works all curiously
Swarmed down the men in gray.

Thick lay the slain like sheaves of grain,
Ripened by battle suns,
But one had died beyond the rest,
A stone's cast from their guns.
They raised him softly,—for the brave
Respect the brave, I ween,—
And in his cap, unwithered still,,
They found a sprig of green.

Of all the thousands lying round,
Close locked in death's embrace,
What one, though all were brave and true,
From death had got such grace?
No bearded soldier old in wars,
Had won the happy place—
He who died nearest to the work,
Had only boyhood's face.

They buried him just where he fell,
These foemen, with rude art;
They said that he had earned the place,
By his undaunted heart.
And one—a poet in is soul—
Though rough in garb and mien,
Planted upon the simple mound
The dead boy's sprig of green.

The brave man dies; but the brave deed
With death will not be found;
And travelers say that to this day,
The children playing round,
Can point the stranger to the spot,
The fairest on the scene,
The grave where sleeps the Irish boy,
Who wore the sprig of green. [Boston Leader.

An Irish Jury Scene.

July, 4th, at the Limerick quarter sessions, the criminal business was commenced before the chairman, John Leahy, Q.C. A man named John Raleigh was indicted for assaulting James Deehy, whilst returning from the Banogue races on the 28th April.

The jury having been absent about a quarter of an hour, returned into court, when

The foreman, Mr. Thomas Sexton, said they had agreed to their verdict.

The Chairman—Which of the counts do you find him guilty on?

The Foreman—We don't find him guilty on any of the counts; we acquit him.

The Chairman—What, were you unanimous?

The Foreman—Yes; we were nine to three.

The Chairman—Really this is losing the time of the court; don't you know, sir, that it is not a proper verdict?

The Foreman—Before discussing the case, we agreed that the minority should be ruled by the majority.

Chairman—Have any of those jurors served before?

Sub-Sheriff—Some of them.

The Chairman then informed the jury that they should retire to consider their verdict. Finding a verdict, as the foreman stated, would not do.

The jury again retired, and shortly after entered the court with a verdict of "Not Guilty."

Chairman—Is that the verdict of the entire jury?

Several Jurors—Yes, your worship.

Chairman—I must tell you now, as the case is over, that if the three jurors for finding the prisoner guilty have been influenced by the majority, they have not acted upon their oaths. I wish to tell you, as new jurors, that you have not acted upon your oaths. However, it is for the jury to satisfy their consciences. I am not casting any imputation on you. To prisoner—Your are now discharged, and I hope if you come here again you will not get off so easily.

The Prisoner—It is my first offence, your worship, and it will be my last.

Chairman—But the jury found that you committed no offence at all (great laughter, in which the entire court joined).

A Gentleman near Vineland, Wisconsin, entered into an orchard to steal some apples, while his friend, who sat on the fence and remonstrated, fell off and broke his neck. There appears to be in this incident a useful lesson for the young.

Which travels the fastest, heat or cold? Heat, of course, because you can catch cold.

The Irish Brigade at Fredericksburg.

This memorable battle was fought on December 31, 1862, with Burnside in command of the Federal troops. The town of Fredericksburg is situated on the brink of the Rappahannock. A range of hills, adapted for purposes of defense, rise to the rear; and on the crest of this range General Lee had strongly fortified himself. Burnside, with a folly begotten either of ignorance or recklessness, resolved to force the intrenched position of the Confederates. On the 11th and 14th, Burnside succeeded in conveying his troops across the river, and on the 13th began the assault upon "The Heights."

"Early in the morning," says the chronicler, the Irish Brigade was drawn up in full line of battle. A green sprig was ordered by Gen. Meagher to be put in the caps of both officers and men, himself first setting the example. At about 9:30, A. M., they were marched to the centre of the city, and there addressed by Gen. Meagher and Col. Nugent. At noon began the desperate assault. The aspect was terrible. Noonday was turned to dusk by the smoke and storm of battle. The Brigade crossed a ravine in the rear of the town, over a rude bridge swept by a raging fire of the enemy. Beyond, the Brigade halted in line of battle, and the men, throwing aside blankets and haversacks, waited for the order to advance. French's division fire, fall, lie down, scatter, rally; but in vain—it is already placed hors de combat. Cooke's brigade advanced in fine style, but rapidly fell; and though its ranks were thinned, still on they went!

The simple truth of the matter is that the Confederate position at Fredericksburg was impregnable; it was a slaughter-pen; and there, right in front of the merciless canon, lay the dead heroes of the Brigade, file after file, as they had fallen—sacraficed to blind incapacity and cruel ambition. After the battle the Twenty-Eighth Massachusetts numbered about 150 muskets, and it was the largest regiment of the whole Brigade! Of the one thousand two hundred whom Meagher had led across the ravine to the assault only two hundred and sixty-three remained. The rest were lying stark and gory on the Heights, far in advance of any other corps, and each dead hero was recognizable by the green plume in his cap!

"BULL RUN" RUSSELL,

the special correspondent of the London Times, an organ which was strongly anti-Union, and which never manifested much partiality for anything Irisb, wrote:—

"The battle which had dashed furiously against the lines of Generals Hood, A. P. Hill, and Early, was little more than child's play as compared with the onslaught directed by the Federals in the immediate neighborhood of Fredericksburg. The impression that the Confederate batteries would not fire heavily upon the Federals advancing in this quarter, for fear of injuring the town of Fredericksburg, is believed to have prevailed among the Northern generals. How bitterly they deceived themselves, subsequent events served to show. To the Irish division, commanded by General Meagher, was principally committed the desperate task of bursting out of the town of Fredericksburg, and forming, under the withering fire of the Confederate batteries, to attack St. Mary's Heights, towering immediately in their front. Never at was more undaunted courage displayed by the sons of Erin than during those six frantic dashes which they directed against the almost impregnable position of their foe. After witnessing the gallantry and devotion exhibited by his troops, and viewing the hillsides for acres strewn with their corpses thick as autumnal leaves, the spectator can remember nothing but their desperate courage, and regret that it was not exhibited in a holier cause. That any mortal men could have carried the position before which they were wantonly sacrificed, defended as it was, seems to me idle for a moment to believe. But the bodies which lie in dense masses within forty yards of the muzzles of Col. Walton's guns, are the best evidence what manner of men they were who pressed on to death, while the undauntlessness of a race which has gained glory on a thousand battlefields, and never more richly deserved it than at the foot of Marye's Heights on the 13st day of December, 1862."

In the confusion while retiring, the colorbearer of the Sixty-ninth was shot down and was not missed for a few moments. The survivors were in agony lest the flag should be lost, for the Irish Brigade could make the proud boast that it had NEVER LOST A BANNER.

The color sergeant was found next day, stiff and dead, with the staff of the missing flag beside him. Upon removing his jacket, there was the flag wrapped round him, with a bullet-hole plumb through it and his heart. With more than Spartan fortitude he has guarded his sacred trust, even in death; and the Brigade could still pride, as it did at the close of the war, that it had never lost a flag! Fredericksburg was a severe lesson, and it almost wiped out the Brigade. An officer, writing from the field of battle, said: "Never, since the war began, have the Union forces met with such a disaster as that we have just suffered. As for the Brigade, may the Lord pity and protect the widows and orphans of nearly all those belonging to it!"

A lecturer on travel mentioned the "midnight sun" of high latitudes as a fearful and wonderful phenomenon. Said a man in the audience, when the lecture was over, "Fearful and wonderful is good. I've got a midnight son five months old whom them words fits like a lid, and I'm darned it I don't hear the little cuss a-hollerin' now, three blocks off."

A country paper in Minnesota wants to know who swindled the Indians out of "such an infernal country as Minnesota is, and who deluded the white people into it."

A young lady, being rebuked by her mother for kissing a gentleman, justified herself with the passage, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do you even so unto them."

IN MEMORIAM.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 3d, 1873.

Though it is, Mr. Editor, the business of the NATIONALIST to concern itself almost altogether with the affairs of men, you will not grudge a few lines to the loss of little children, or would not, were you impressed as I have been to-day in Lone Mountain Cemetery. In yesterday's paper, you sympathized with Mr. Barron and his lady in their bereavement, and noticed that on Friday the remains of their promising child, MARY ERINA, were followed to the grave by an unusually large number of friends. Since then, short as the time is, the bereavement of our friend's family has been doubled; for, another daughter, Kittie, the beloved of all who knew her, an interesting child of five years, whose winning ways drew all hearts to her, has succumbed; and we have mournfully consigned to earth to-day all that was mortal of her. The loss of two such darlings in two days is an affliction, the anguish of which none can so well realize as the bereaved parents; but if kindly and large-hearted sympathy could alleviate sorrow, they must feel gratified at the tokens of friendship which met them at every step. Not only was the funeral cortege large and imposing, but there were accessories full of consolation. The little girls whom all remarked as they sung "God save Ireland" from the triumphal car on St. Patrick's Day have missed their companion, Mary Erina, and testified their affection for her in many ways. Her vacant desk in the Lincoln school was hung with crape and covered with flowers which have been daily renewed. The Rev. Father Prelato evinced his sympathy by attending Kittie's funeral to-day, and delivered two discourses, one in the church and one at the grave, a personal compliment to Mr. Barron, which speaks a good deal for the esteem in which he is held. Returning homeward, the following lines occurred to me as appropriate Their insertion will oblige KATIE.

THE LITTLE ONES ASLEEP.

MARY ERINA AND KITTIE BARRON.

When the day at last, declining,
Brings the peaceful eventide,
When the clouds with silver lining
All the beauteous sunbeams hide,
Then the heart will fondly cherish
Memories so sweet and deep,
Happy thoughts that ne'er will perish,
Of the little ones asleep.
Fast asleep beneath the daisies,
Never more to wake or weep,
While we whisper o'er the praises
Of the little ones asleep.

Summer flowers may bud and blossom,
Happy birds will come again,
But wenever more shall listen
To the children's glad refrain—
For their dimpled hands are lying
Where the sunbeams never creep,
And our hearts are ever sighing
For the little ones asleep.
But we know they wake in heaven,
Clinging close to angels dear,
While they whisper morn and even,
Prayers for the loved ones here.

UNITED STATES.

The Official Gazette of Nicaragua announces the termination of the labors of the United States exploring expedition for the canal route, under charge of Captain Lull, who says his labors have ended with the most brilliant results, and he will be able to show that this is the best route yet. Were this canal constructed, the golden future of California would be secure.

Bands of the Northern Cheyennes and Arraphoe Indians have been committing depredations in Mad River Valley. This consistently followed their professions of good behavior at the Peace Council recently held at the Red Cloud Agency.

The advance guard, three hundred strong, of a Russian colony numbering 20,000 souls, has arrived in New York. The agents with, it is said, $15,000,000 at their back, have selected lands in Iowa, Minnesota and Dakota for the immigrants to settle on.

The lawless bands which infest the borders of the Rio Grande will probably succeed in embroiling the relations of Mexico and the United States. Some Cabinet officers at Washington are accused of harboring a design of provoking another Mexican war.

A terrific hail storm has been making havoc on the mountain district of the U. P. R. R. The hailstones were of enormous size, and were in places piled up two feet high. A large force of men was forwarded to make the necessary repairs.

In the State of Sprague, the policeman shot down five of a mob assembled in Providence, (R. I.) as a hint that the rest had better be quiet.

Texas is in earnest about intending her Pacific Railroad. A mail service has been ordered on the new extension from Long Run to Dallas, a distance of 122 miles.

To protect themselves from the gamblers and thieves that infest Omaha, the citizens have revived their vigilance committee.

Dr. O'Leary, Manhattan College, N. Y., gallantly rescued a drowning lady off Coney Island a few days since.

The marble statue of Daniel O'Connell to be erected in Central Park, New York, is to be life size and executed by a first-class sculptor.

Two telegraph operators, one at South Frothingham, and the other at Worcester, Mass., began chaffing one another over the wires one evening lately. Words ran high, and blood was roused, though the men were far enough asunder. For want of something better to do, one of them took the down train and put a head on the other.

BESIDES being a soldier and a statesman, Marshal MacMahon has given another proof that he can dispense hospitality in a magnificent style. The reception of the Shah in Paris was of such a brilliant nature, that the English fetes dwindled in comparison into insignificance.

Why is a flea like a Railway engine? Because it moves over sleepers.

TELEGRAPH NEWS BOILED DOWN.

At Valencia on Saturday last four companies of Volunteer Cavalry, under Cavalotte, charged with Plaza, attacking the civil guard and the carbineers. The Cavalry suffered heavily, but captured four barricades. On Monday last regular mortar fire was delivered on Valencia by Government troops. A few citizens were killed, and the church of San Sebastian was injured by bombs.

London papers received at New York on the sixth instant state that the case of Savolen Rahn against Baron Center was disposed of by the Lord Chancellor, who said the court could certainly not deal with an alleged fraud committed in a foreign country. "Every allegation which ought to be in the bill to support it was wanting, while everything necessary to destroy it appeared, and the demurer must therefore be allowed."

The International Patent Right Congress is in session at Vienna. One of its first acts was to resolve that a common protection of inventions should be guaranteed by the laws of all civilized countries. J. M. Thatcher, of the United States Patent Office, has been invited to a seat in the Congress.

Favorable news has been received from all the mining districts of Mexico. The general pacification of the country has a good effect on operations. New gold, silver, and platina mines have been discovered six leagues from the capital.

A meeting was held in Hyde Park last Sunday to protest against the grant to the Duke of Edinburgh; Mr. Bradlaugh presided. It was resolved that the Queen be petitioned to refuse her assent to the bill. She was too kind a mother to do anything of the kind,

The British, Russian, and German Consuls have thanked General Peria, commanding the Government troops at Seville, for the gallant conduct of his men, and the protection given to foreigners and their property.

An annual pension of £300 from the British government has been conferred on Dr. Livingstone, the African traveller, who is constantly dying, and as constantly turning up to revisit the pale glimpses of the moon.

A private dispatch from London dated August states that Captain Phillips and officers of the wrecked steamer City of Washington have been dismissed from the employ of the company for not casting the lead during the voyage.

Emigration from Russia to America is increasing. Four hundred Russians sailed on Monday last in one steamer. The movement threatens to depopulate some districts in Russia, as these are but the vanguard of an army of thousands.

A fleet of Italian war vessels has been ordered to proceed to Cartagena to protect Italians there, and to co-operate with other foreign vessels in whatever measures may be deemed necessary.

The Commander of the German frigate Frederich Carl has decided to detain the insurrectional chief, General Contreras, as hostage for the conduct of the insurgent fleet.

O'Dillon Barrett, Vice President of the council of State, and connected with one of the first families of Ireland, died on Wednesday at Paris, aged eighty-two.

A duel was fought in Paris on Wednesday, between M. Herve, editor of the Journal de Paris, and M. About, the well-known author and journalist.

The Carlists are increasing in numbers in the Basque provinces of Navarre and Catalonia.

Extraordinary Hoax.

That intelligent Britons can be humbugged as well as other people was proved by what occurred in Cambridge on the occasion of the visit to London of the Shah of Persia. The press and the public officials and flunkeys having been ordered to bow down before that interesting barbarian, everybody vied with everybody else to feast and flatter him. The Mayor of Cambridge received a bogus telegram announcing the arrival in two hours afterwards of the Shah. Immediately all the inhabitants civic, military, and otherwise turned out; flags were run up, and all the preparations for a gala day made which the shortness of notice permitted. The artillery was ready to salute, and the surging crowd awaited the train which was to bring the despot among them. They were chagrined at the "sell" they experienced, but solaced themselves in some measure by gulphing down unlimited measures of beer, and blowing off steam, cursing in a manner which would be likely to offend a saint.

Fine Stock of DRY GOODS.

J. J. O'BRIEN, No. 606 Market street, respectfully informs his patrons, and the people of the Pacific Coast in general, that on account of other arrangements (which will soon be made public), he is necessitated to dispose of the entire stock. And no matter what the sacrifice is to be, a "Complete Clearance" must be effected; consequently, all intending purchasers of Dry Goods will do well to call, see, and examine the Stock before purchasing elsewhere
